Welcome to Sleep Health & Safety 2010

Dear Colleagues:

Sleep profoundly affects our health and safety. Millions of people have sleep disorders, and most go undiagnosed and untreated. Sleep-deprived high school students under-perform, and thousands of fatigue-related car crashes occur each year.

Sleep Health & Safety 2010 is the first conference to examine sleep from both clinical and public health perspectives. It will offer two tracks—a Health Care Professional Track, providing CME credits for physicians and health care professionals plus a Public Health and Safety Track for public health, transportation safety, and school health professionals, government officials, and sleep researchers.

The Health Care Professional Track will present medically sound, practical instruction on the physiology of sleep and the diagnosis and treatment of insomnia, sleep apnea, restless legs syndrome (RLS), and circadian rhythm disorders. It will address sleep problems in special populations and cover the management of sleep and comorbid medical conditions, such as pain, diabetes, hypertension, and depression.

The Public Health and Safety Track will present new data on the epidemiology of sleep and sleep disorders. It will address public health and public policy issues related to sleep and alertness, including drowsy driving legislation, medical certification of transportation operators, new alertness monitoring technology, and drowsy driving counter-measures. It will also discuss policy issues related to sleep, adolescent school health and educational performance and the emerging art and science of fatigue risk management.

Please join us this March at the gorgeous Gaylord Hotel, right on the Potomac River and just minutes from Washington, DC.

Sincerely,

Target Audience

• Primary care physicians
• Sleep clinicians and researchers
• CBT specialists
• Physician Assistants
• Nurses
• Public health officials
• Transportation safety experts
• Educators or school nurses concerned about school start times
• Public policy specialists
• Chronic disease directors

Learning Objectives (For Health Care Professional Track)

Upon completion of this activity, learners will be able to:
• Discuss the implications for clinical medicine posed by sleep disorders
• List the risk factors of various sleep and circadian disorders
• Describe the clinical characteristics of various sleep and circadian disorders
• Distinguish treatment approaches for various sleep and circadian disorders
• Use appropriate diagnostic tools to assess patient’s sleep health
• Explain the association of sleep loss, sleep disorders and comorbid conditions

Accreditation Statement
This activity has been planned and implemented in accordance with the Essential Areas and policies of the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education through the joint sponsorship of the Atlanta School of Sleep Medicine and the National Sleep Foundation. The Atlanta School of Sleep Medicine is accredited by the ACCME to provide continuing medical education for physicians.

Designation of Credit
The Atlanta School of Sleep Medicine designates this educational activity for a maximum of 11 AMA PRA Category 1 Credits™. Physicians should only claim credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.

Disclosure
It is the policy of the Atlanta School of Sleep Medicine to ensure balance, independence, objectivity, and scientific rigor in all its educational activities. All faculty participating in programs sponsored or jointly sponsored by Atlanta School of Sleep Medicine are expected to disclose to the program audience any real or apparent conflict(s) of interest related to the content of their presentation(s). Having an interest in or affiliation with any corporate organization does not necessarily influence a speaker’s presentation, but the relationship must be made known in advance to the audience in accordance with the standards of the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education. It is the policy of the Atlanta School of Sleep Medicine that all faculty disclose the following information: (1) if the CME content over which the speaker has control contains information about healthcare products or services; (2) if so, the financial relationship of individual and spouse/partner in the last 12 months with manufacturers of products or providers of services must be stipulated; and (3) attestation whether any identified relationship would cause information about healthcare products and services in the CME content to be commercially biased.
